

Poetry in your Pocket Day

April is National Poetry Month, and tomorrow is "Poem in your Pocket Day." Here's what the sponsoring organization Poets.org says about it:

"Select a poem, carry it with you, and share it with others throughout the day. You can also share your selection on Twitter by using the hashtag #pocketpoem." One unique way is to switch to old technology--remember the telephone?--and call a friend and read a poem to him or her. What a great way to share this form of oral literature.

Please feel free to scan our large collection of contemporary poetry and classics. American poetry can be found between 811-812 in our stacks, British, between 821-822. If you want to explore poetry from other languages, try 831--German, 841--French, etc. Haiku can be found in the 895s. (They squeezed poetry from many cultures in the 890s including Russian, Japanese, Chinese and Inuit.) Also, you can find a large and diverse selection at Poets.org.

I'll get a head-start on the day by sharing one of my favorite spring poems with you from Complete Poems: 1904-1962 by e.e. cummings. His love for nature and humanity shines through all his poems.

[in Just-]

By e. e. cummings 1894--1962
in Just-
spring when the world is mud-luscious the little
lame balloonman
whistles far and wee
and eddieandbill come
running from marbles and piracies and it's
spring
when the world is puddle-wonderful the queer
old balloonman whistles far and wee
and bettyandisbel come dancing from hop-sotch and jump-rope and it's
spring
and
the goat-footed
balloonMan whistles
far
and

wee
