

Learn Basic Computer Skills with Northstar Learning

The internet is everywhere, allowing you to work, play, and complete daily life tasks wherever there is WiFi. This is especially helpful in the age of physical distancing and mask-wearing.

For those with WiFi access, barriers may still exist. Some community members experience frustration with email and online forms, and concerns about internet safety, leaving them feeling increasingly isolated from social connections and workforce opportunities.

Do you have a friend or family member that could use a little help? VITAL's Northstar Online Learning teaches the basic computer skills needed to communicate using computers. Its free, self-paced courses offer step-by-step instruction, practice, and review for:

- Basic Computer Skills
- Internet Basics
- Using Email
- Microsoft Word

You can get started or learn more by calling 812-349-3173. You can also email vital [at] mcpl.info or sign up here. Our friendly VITAL staff will get you set up to learn new skills and track your progress!

More advanced users can find additional training resources at Indiana University's IT Training or LinkedIn Learning.
