

? More Staff Picks

A Canticle for Leibowitz

Walter M. Miller

SF Miller

This classic post apocalyptic novel follows a cloister of monks in Utah over several hundred years. Funny, yet bleak, this novel questions whether man can truly avoid repeating the past.

Children of Men

P.D. James

James

In the year 2021 humans no longer give birth. England is ruled by a despotic Warden who encourages the infirm to commit group suicide and subjects immigrants to semi-legalized slavery. Theo, a quiet man, becomes involved with a group of dissidents.

Earth Abides

George R. Stewart

SF Stewart

A virus has swept the globe leaving few survivors. Those who remain attempt to rebuild society. Written in 1949 this novel is especially timely today.

I Am Legend

Richard Matheson

Matheso

Before this was a Will Smith movie, it was a book combining vampires with the end of humanity. After a plague turns survivors into blood thirsty creatures, Robert Neville remains immune. With his trusty dog at his side he tries to find a cure.

One Second After

William Forstchen

SF Forstch

An electromagnetic pulse has destroyed America's power grid. College professor John Matherson attempts to figure out what happened and protect his family as society breaks down.

The Road

Cormac McCarthy

McCarth

A man and his son wander a post apocalyptic America, trying to get to the sea. They must battle starvation and roving bands of cannibals to reach their goal. The real story is the relationship between father and son.

The Stand

Stephen King

King

When nearly all of humanity is wiped out by the Super Flu survivors are pulled in two different directions. One group is trying to rebuild the human race, while the other is trying to destroy it.

The Windup Girl

Paolo Bacigalupi

SF Bacigal

This harrowing, yet literate story portrays a post-oil Bangkok. A cast of fascinating, realistic characters struggle for survival in an era where natural food is extinct and humans can be genetically engineered on a whim. Winner of the Nebula Award.

The Year of the Flood

Margaret Atwood

Atwood

After most of humankind dies Ren and Toby are locked inside their respective places of employment, unsure if others are alive. In a future world populated by gene spliced creations like the liobam (a lion-lamb combination) the two must determine how to survive.

Z for Zachariah

Robert C. O'Brien

Y O'Brien

Told from the perspective of a 16-year-old girl who survives nuclear war alone in her small town. When a stranger arrives she must determine if he is friend or foe.

print this pagesend by emailPDF version
