

Celebrate Black History Month

For Black History Month, play a game of bingo that facilitates discussions about race and offers opportunities to learn about Black visionaries, leaders, and artists. Complete five squares in a row to earn a prize! Just turn it in to an MCPL staff member at the Downtown Library, Ellettsville Branch, or Bookmobile.

B

I

N

G

O

Discover a new-to-you Black artist, author, educator, or leader	Discover a new-to-you political figure from the Civil Rights Movement	Learn how to celebrate the Black experience year-round	Help facilitate a discussion about race among your family or friends with a grownup	Explore Black Life in America in MCPL's eLibrary
Attend a Black History Month program in your community	Read a nonfiction book by a Black author	Listen to a podcast hosted by a Black creator	Watch a movie by a Black filmmaker	Explore new music by a Black artist
Read from a Black media publication	Read a cookbook by a Black chef	FREE SPACE	Attend an MCPL Black History Month program	Attend an exhibit that features Black artists
Read a new arrival book by a Black author	Support a Black-owned business	Read a graphic novel by a Black author	Seek out content that celebrates Black joy	Read a book by a Black poet
Learn a new fact about Black History Month	Donate your time or resources to Black organizations	Learn about the person considered to be the creator of Black History Month: Carter G. Woodson	Learn about an unsung hero of Black history	Engage with Black creators, activists, or educators on social media